SOCIAL SECURITY TRIBUNAL DECISION
Appeal Division – Leave to Appeal Decision

SOCIAL SECURITY TRIBUNAL MEMBER: Pierre Lafontaine

DATE OF DECISION: January 5, 2015

DECISION

[1] The Tribunal grants the extension of time to file the application for leave to appeal and grants leave to appeal to the Appeal Division of the Social Security Tribunal.

INTRODUCTION

[2] On February 20, 2013, a Board of Referees found that:

- The Respondent was justified in proceeding with the reconsideration of the benefit claim under section 52 of the Employment Insurance Act (the Act);
- The Applicant's earnings were allocated in accordance with sections 35 and 36 of the Employment Insurance Regulations (the Regulations).

[3] On April 23, 2013, the Applicant filed an application for leave to appeal with the Appeal Division.

ISSUE

[4] The Tribunal must decide whether the appeal has a reasonable chance of success.

THE LAW

[5] According to subsections 56(1) and 58(3) of the Department of Employment and Social Development Act, "an appeal to the Appeal Division may only be brought if leave to appeal is granted" and "the Appeal Division must either grant or refuse leave to appeal."

[6] Subsection 58(2) of the Department of Employment and Social Development Act provides that "leave to appeal is refused if the Appeal Division is satisfied that the appeal has no reasonable chance of success."

ANALYSIS

[7] In accordance with subsection 58(1) of the Department of Employment and Social Development Act, the only grounds of appeal are that:

(a) the Board of Referees failed to observe a principle of natural justice or otherwise acted beyond or refused to exercise its jurisdiction;

(b) the Board of Referees erred in law in making its decision or order, whether or not the error appears on the face of the record; or

(c) the Board of Referees based its decision or order on an erroneous finding of fact that it made in a perverse or capricious manner or without regard for the material before it.

[8] The Applicant stated that when he received the Board of Referees' decision, the attached document indicated a 60-day period to appeal to the Umpire. The Tribunal finds that, under the circumstances, the interest of justice favours granting the extension of time to file the Applicant's application for leave to appeal – X (Re), 2014 FCA 249; Grewal v. Minister of Employment and Immigration, [1985] 2 F.C. 263 (F.C.A.).

[9] A leave to appeal proceeding is a preliminary step to a hearing on the merits. It is a first hurdle for the Applicant to meet, but it is lower than the one that must be met on the hearing of the appeal on the merits. At the leave stage, the Applicant does not have to prove the case.

[10] The Tribunal will grant leave to appeal if the Applicant shows that one of the above-mentioned grounds of appeal has a reasonable chance of success.

[11] This means that the Tribunal must be in a position to determine, in accordance with subsection 58(1) of the Department of Employment and Social Development Act, whether there is a question of law, fact or jurisdiction whose response might justify setting aside the decision under review.

[12] Given the foregoing, does the Applicant's appeal have a reasonable chance of success?

[13] In his application for leave to appeal, the Applicant argued that the Board of Referees failed to take into account that he was on paid sick leave as of August 2009 and that there is no waiting period in such cases. He referred to subsection 40(6) of the Regulations. He stated that the Board of Referees failed to take into account his argument on this point in its decision.

[14] After reviewing the appeal docket, the Board of Referees' decision and the arguments made in support of the application for leave to appeal, the Tribunal concludes that the appeal has a reasonable chance of success. The Applicant raised a question of fact and law whose response might justify setting aside the decision under review.

CONCLUSION

[15] The Tribunal grants the extension of time to file the application for leave to appeal and grants leave to appeal to the Appeal Division of the Social Security Tribunal.
